Electric and natural gas service suppliers in Illinois number about 40 and 20, respectively, and they all have strengths and weaknesses. It therefore can be difficult to know which supplier and program would offer your dealership the greatest benefits based on your individual needs.

Join Utility Management Group, an energy broker, for a discussion of the energy decision-making process. With the electric market experiencing historic lows and with the natural gas market experiencing record volatility, understanding your options can save your dealership thousands of dollars annually.
